

The University of Texas at Austin

School of Journalism

Moody College of Communication

The School of Journalism at The University of Texas at Austin has long been recognized as a leader in journalism education. The faculty, which includes internationally renowned scholars, have diverse backgrounds and extensive experience in the fields of print, broadcast, photojournalism and multimedia journalism. They hold leadership positions in national and international organizations and serve as editors, editorial board members and contributors to the top journals in the field.

In a recent evaluation by the Accrediting Council for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication, the school was praised for the faculty's level of scholarly productivity, visibility in both academic and professional circles and exceptional student-faculty relations.

The School of Journalism includes among its former students 33 Pulitzer Prize winners, three of whom have won the award twice.

Bachelor of Journalism (BJ)

The digital revolution has shattered old business models, transformed the practice and teaching of journalism and irrevocably changed the nature and the mission of our school. The UT Austin School of Journalism prepares students to work in an ever-changing variety of media platforms, while at the same time grounding them in fundamental journalistic values. The program goal is to educate students to think critically, gather information accurately, honestly and fairly, and produce stories that communicate clearly, concisely and powerfully to the public using all the tools for information gathering and communication that modern technology provides. Students complete a broad, integrated course schedule across five levels: foundations, applications, specialized issues and skills courses, professional principles, and professional practices. The major core curriculum contains components involving critical issues, basic newsgathering and writing, multimedia and media law, and ethics. Students will also complete coursework on public affairs reporting as well as understanding and reporting social issues.

The specialized issues and skills courses allow students to choose coursework of interest related to broadcast journalism, photojournalism, magazine writing and production, sports journalism, editing and layout, directing and producing, graphic design, digital image processing, electronic media, online and new media, social media, and other computer-based journalism.

Graduate Degree Programs

Graduate work in journalism at The University of Texas at Austin may lead to the Master of Arts (M.A.) or the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.).

Internships

Journalism majors are required to complete a professional internship for credit in their field of interest or the Reporting Texas course, which is an online news service that provides real-world newsroom experience and multimedia reporting to professional news outlets across the state. The internship requirement helps equip students to graduate with practiced skills attractive to the industry.

Resources

In summer 2012, the Moody College of Communication opened its new facility, the Belo Center for New Media, and completed a total renovation of the CMA and CMB buildings in summer 2015. The projects greatly expanded the resources available to journalism students with a multimedia newsroom designed to be both an interactive classroom where students acquire state-of-the-art professional skills and a working newsroom that serves as the editorial nexus for producing the school's news website, Reporting Texas. Additionally, students have access to a photojournalism classroom, two journalism-focused labs, a dedicated writing lab and a high-definition live TV studio.

Student Involvement

The school sponsors several student organizations including chapters of national organizations: the Society of Professional Journalists, Texas Broadcasters/UT-RTDNA (Radio-Television Digital News Association), National Press Photographer's Association, Society for News Design, MAG (for students across disciplines who wish to pursue careers in

DIRECTOR

Kathleen McElroy
Professor

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR

Kris Wilson
Senior Lecturer

FACULTY

Rosental C. Alves
Professor, Knight Chair in Journalism

Mary Bock
Assistant Professor

Gina Masullo Chen
Assistant Professor

Iris Chyi
Associate Professor

Renita Coleman
Professor

Tracy Dahlby
Professor, Frank A. Bennack, Jr. Chair in Journalism

Dennis Darling
Professor

Donna DeCesare
Associate Professor

Tom Johnson
Professor, Amon G. Carter, Jr. Centennial Professor in Communication

William Minutaglio
Clinical Professor

Dhiraj Murthy
Associate Professor

Paula Poindexter
Professor

Eli Reed
Clinical Professor

Stephen D. Reese
Professor

Maggie Rivas-Rodriguez
Professor

Amy Kristin Sanders
Associate Professor

George Sylvie
Associate Professor

Rusty Todd
Professor

Samuel Wooley
Assistant Professor

LECTURERS

Marla Camp

Andrew Chavez

Diana Dawson

Kate Winkler Dawson

Eileen Flynn DeLaO

David Donaldson

Bob Garcia-Buckalew

Kirk Goldsberry

Raoul Hernandez

Jeff Linwood

Christian McDonald

Michael Pearson

Chase Quarterman

Robert J. Quigley

Kevin Robbins

the magazine industry) and ORANGE (UT's student magazine). Journalism student organizations are diverse and give aspiring journalists the opportunity to learn, create and socialize with fellow students who share their interests.

J-School Opportunities

Dispatch 40

NPR-quality radio news program broadcast on student radio station KVRX 91.7 FM.

Texas Newswatch

A broadcast news program aired on student television station TSTV.

Reporting Texas

The school's news content website. Content is reported, written and edited by students. (reportingtexas.com)

Center for Sports Communication and Media

The center supports curriculum, research and programming within the related disciplines of the Moody College of Communication and interdisciplinary discourse across campus that addresses issues related to sports and media.

Sports Illustrated Internship

Sports Illustrated magazine and the UT Austin School of Journalism have partnered to offer two journalism internships in New York City each fall and spring semester. These internships are full-time, paid, and allow for course credit. This internship program is available to UT Austin journalism students only.

ORANGE Magazine

A color publication that is mainly produced by students enrolled in magazine management and magazine production classes.

Voces

The U.S. Latino and Latina Oral History Project led by Maggie Rivas-Rodriguez offers opportunities for students to conduct oral history interviews and research for an award-winning program.

Campus-Wide Media

The Daily Texan is the largest student newspaper in the country. The publication has won national recognition from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the Society of Professional Journalists, and the Associated Collegiate Press.

The Cactus Yearbook is the oldest publication at The University of Texas at Austin. The staff works to capture the college experience at one of the country's largest universities.

The Longhorn Network is UT Austin's joint venture with ESPN.

Texas Student Television (TSTV) is the only student-run, low-power television station in the United States.

KVRX Radio broadcasts 12 hours daily and reaches the Austin city limits and outlying communities.

The Texas Travesty college humor publication publishes online and in print every two months during the school year.

Sponsored Events and Special Programs

The School of Journalism hosts numerous events and programs dedicated to discussing, teaching and recognizing the practice of good journalism. Among them is the ASNE High School Journalism Institute, the Dow Jones Newspaper Fund Center for Editing Excellence, the International Symposium on Online Journalism, the Mary Alice Davis Distinguished Lecture Series, a Journalism Honors Day, and the Communication Job and Internship Fair.

The Knight Center for Journalism in the Americas

Created by Professor Rosental Alves as a professional outreach and training program for journalists in Latin America and the Caribbean, the Knight Center offers training opportunities for reporters, editors and photojournalists in an effort to advance press freedom and democracy in the Americas.

Study Abroad

Special study abroad programs take students to Australia and the Czech Republic while earning credit towards a degree in journalism.

Career Possibilities

News desk assistant, weather reporter, news reporter, anchor (newscaster), scriptwriter, news director, announcer, sportscaster, writer, photo editor, staff photographer, videographer, online editor, online producer, public information officer, columnist, web designer, computer programmer, telecommunications specialist, researcher, editorial chief, line editor, manuscript editor, editorial director/publisher, editorial assistant, reporter, social media editor, etc.

The Journalism Community (Fall 2018)

Number of Undergraduate Students: 602
Number of M.A. Students: 26
Number of Ph.D. Students: 21
Web: journalism.utexas.edu
Phone: 512-471-1845

Erna Smith
Jim Spencer
Kate West
Dan Zehr

UNDERGRADUATE ACADEMIC ADVISOR

Jeff Hallock
Alexia Apollo

GRADUATE PROGRAM COORDINATOR

Sylvia Edwards

NOTABLE ALUMNI

Berkeley Breathed
BJ '80, creator of Bloom County
(Pulitzer Prize winner)

Jane Chesnut
BJ '73, editor-in-chief of Woman's Day

Jeff Cohen
BJ '76, editor of the Houston Chronicle

Walter Cronkite
BA '33, anchor of the CBS Evening News

Javier Garza
MA '02, editor of El Siglo de Torreon

Karen Elliott House
BJ '70, publisher of
The Wall Street Journal
(Pulitzer Prize winner)

Mark Morrison
BJ '70, editor of Business
Week Magazine

Bill Moyers
BJ '56, journalist,
Public Affairs Television, Inc.

Lady Bird Johnson
BJ '34, First Lady of the United States

Liz Smith,
BJ '50, syndicated celebrity news columnist

office: Belo Center for New Media, BMC 3.338
web: journalism.utexas.edu/
email: journalism@austin.
utexas.edu
phone: 512.471.1845
address: 300 W Dean Keeton
Street, Austin, TX 78712